CONCERNING the much-talked-of project for opening a steamship service between Japan and Bombay, it was reported some time ago, says a Japanese contemporary that, there being lack of combination among the owners of the spinning factories, the project had little prospect of realization. But we are now informed that there is a hope of the service being opened. It is stated that many of the proprietors of the Japanese spinning factories refuse to join the league for supporting the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, because they expect that, in the event of the opening of the line, the P. & O. Steamship Company will lower its freight to point below that promised by the Japanese company, and they wish to take full advantage of the competition. The vernacular press earnestly, calls upon these persons to join the league and stand by the Nippon Ynsen Kaisha. By taking skilful advantage of the competition, they may be able to obtain temporary profits, but they are reminded that, if they refuse to join the league, the P. & O. Company.
